Guangzhou, Shenzhen, Zhuhai

Guangzhou, also known as Canton, is one of China's most prosperous cities. Facing the South Sea and adjoining to Hong Kong and Macao, Guangzhou is the transportation pivot as well as the south gateway of China. The city with long summer and no winter is always green with flowers in bloom all the year round, hence reputed as "Flower City" as well. Full of prosperity and vigor, the city will present you with not only ancient customs but also current fashions.

Shenzhen, the one-time small fishing village, singled-out by late Chinese paramount leader Deng Xiaoping, the chief designer of Chinese reform and opening, is a so-called one of the Special Economic Zones in China originally established in 1978. Shenzhen won the honor of being entitled an "International Garden City" at the "Green Oscars" in November 2000.

Zhuhai, located at the southern estuary of the Zhujiang Delta in Guangdong Province, boasts its amiable climate, beautiful beaches and convenient transportation, and has been entitled as the Model City for Environment Protection by the United Nation.
